A message from our Pastor

Today, as we enter Holy Week, let us pay special attention to the continuous invitation and encouragement that Jesus gives to each one of us. He truly is the Good Shepherd and does not want even one of us to be left behind and apart from His Father's infinite love and mercy.

Many parts of the story of Palm Sunday are very familiar to us.

For example, Jesus says to Simon, "Before the cock crows you will deny me three times." We know this part of the story but why do we focus on the failure? There is another message that I think many of us have overlooked. Listen to what Jesus says before the part about the cock crowing: "Simon, Simon, behold Satan has demanded to sift all of you like wheat, but I have prayed that your own faith may not fail; and once you have turned back, you must strengthen your brothers." Jesus knows that we are weak and that we will be tempted. But He tells Simon that He has prayed for him and that Simon will turn back. Not only will He turn back but Simon will strengthen his brothers in their faith!

Further along in the story, crucified, Jesus continues to advocate for us, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

And then toward the end of the story, two criminals are introduced. Both men guilty, condemned justly, and sentenced according to the crimes they committed. Each man asks something of Jesus, but only one receives this answer: "Amen I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise."

Jesus never gives up on us. He constantly offers us the path to forgiveness, mercy, hope, and love! He is with us always.

There will be many opportunities for each of us to be with Jesus this week as we celebrate the Triduum – Holy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, and finally, triumphantly, Easter Sunday! Fr. Matt and I look forward to praying and celebrating with you this week. May we use this time to turn back to Jesus and be strengthened in our faith so that we may go forth and make disciples!

Fr. Tom May, Pastor

A message from our Associate Pastor

Here is a fantastic article from Tom Hoopes of Aletheia as we enter into Holy Week.

Why do we pretend Christ's Passion is happening now?

"Did Jesus die yet?" asked my 4-year-old son last week. "Not yet. Good Friday is next week," I said. But that's not true. He died 2,000 years ago.

It's the same every year. "Where is Jesus now?" my daughter will ask on Holy Saturday. "Descending into hell," I will answer. Wrong again. "He sits at the right hand of the Father," the Creed tells us.

This started to bother me. Wait. Why do we pretend things that happened a long, long time ago are happening right now? I brought my question to the Theology floor at Benedictine College. Paraphrasing and building on what they said, here's what I learned.

"We don't treat anything else that way," I said. "Oh, yes we do," came the answer.

"I don't celebrate my wife's birthday by pretending she was just born," I said. "And I don't celebrate my mom's death anniversary by ritualistically reliving that night. So why do I pretend Jesus is a baby in December and a corpse in April?"

Because I saw, touched, and heard my wife and mom. I didn't have that experience with Jesus, and I need it.

Since we are a soul and body unity, we learn best by engaging all of our senses. Just as visiting Fort Sumter teaches us things a Shelby Foote book can't, and Kansas City's World War I museum can tell us even more than a David Reynolds documentary — living Holy Week with attention can teach us more than The Passion of the Christ.

And for sacramental Christians, the liturgy is even more than just a spiritual museum. It is a time machine. The Catechism says the Passion of Christ "transcends all times while being made present in them all" through the liturgy (No. 1085).

To know Jesus the way I know my wife, I need to live through critical times in his life with him. That means I need the liturgy.

"But if we need to be with Jesus, and Jesus is all-powerful, why doesn't he just transport us all bodily so we can be at each of these events?" I asked. "How did that work out last time?" came the answer.

The Apostles were present, in person, throughout the events of Holy Week, and they fled in terror.

Do we think we would do better, knowing all we know? I'm not so sure. Pope Benedict pointed out that Dostoevsky, in The Idiot, says a particular painting of Christ in the tomb "might cause one to lose his faith."

That is exactly what it did in the Apostles' case. Faced with the visceral reality of Christ's humanity, their faith crumbled. When it comes to Christ's divinity, our faith does better than sight. Jesus says so himself.

"Have you come to believe because you have seen me?" he asks Thomas. "Blessed are those who have not seen and have believed" (Luke 20:29).

An act of faith seems to do something important for us.

For one thing, it embeds us in a community of believers, so that we aren't imprisoned by our own limitations. It was only after they were filled with the Holy Spirit and fed by the sacraments that the Apostles became courageous witnesses to mysteries that were now unseen.

The truth is, in the sacraments, we meet Christ the way we need to, anyway.

Think about it. What we most want, what we most cherish, is not the words of a person, which are just a phone call or Facebook chat away, but their presence. We have been telling ourselves about this lesson for years.

Tennyson described what the sunrise was like after his best friend died: "On the bald street breaks the blank day." Bill Withers said the same thing this way: "Ain't no sunshine when she's gone." When we stand before an enchanting tourist destination our postcards sum up the one thing it lacks: "Wish you were here."

It's not our beloved's words or image we miss; it is the beloved's real presence that changes everything.

The sacraments, in the same way, deliver the most essential dimension of Jesus Christ — his real presence. And we get it in the form that allows our imaginations to make the experience even greater, rather than in the form that risks our missing the point.

That's not to say there isn't a place for the physicality of being side by side with the bodily, bearded, Jesus.

That, after all, is what we are aiming for, in heaven. For eternity. Where faith comes to fruition and "I shall know fully, as I am fully known."

PARISH OFFICE HOURS

The parish office will have limited hours from 10:00 am - 12:00 pm.

CAR SEAT DROP OFF

Donations of many kinds are a part of our outreach to people in need throughout the community. We have a very generous faith family that continually looks for ways to give back. One type of donation we are NOT able to accept is used infant and toddler car seats. From a safety perspective, the US government never recommends installing a used car seat. If a car seat has been in any type of crash, it is always recommended to replace that seat immediately as there is no guarantee that the seat would perform correctly if subjected to another crash. We graciously ask that you NOT drop used car seats off at either entrance to any of our facilities. Thank you!

Lord Jesus, teach me to be generous. Teach me to serve as you deserve, To give and not to count the cost, To fight and not to heed the wounds, To labor and not to seek to rest, To give of my self and not ask for a reward, Except the reward of knowing that I am doing your will.
